Bishop Newton, one of those before the council, Rev. Dr. Gibson, of Cincinnati, was then placed in nomination, and a member of the body had made certain statements, the effect of which was that Dr. Gibson was a broad churchman. The speaker thought it should be known whether these charges or statements had ever been disproved or withdrawn.

Rev. Harry B. Lee, who made the statement referred to in the council in suited for this discesse, because of the council to all the principles of the Church and a Virginia churchman, delited all the principles of the Church case of the council to understand exactly how he stood with regard to Dr. Gibson. INQUIRY AS TO THE CHARGES. Bev. Dr. Gibson had been nominated Bishop-Coadjutor of the diocese, and that the nemination was awaiting the confirmation of the lay delegates. Judge T. R. B. Wright wanted to knew something about those charges before the laity went into the confirmation. A motion was made by Mr. Bryan to adjourn in order that the lay delegates might confer upon the confirmation of Dr. Gibson, but this was defeated. A motion, made by Mr. Themas Poindexter, to take a recess for an hour was tabled, but another motion, to take the sense of the laity relative to adjournment was put and lost by a voit of 26 ayes and 34 noes. Judge Wright again got the floor, and made a ringing speech, urging the importance of the laity knowing what the extent and nature of the charges or statements about Dr. Gibson's orthodoxy amounted to. "Tutored at the University of Virginia, that grand institution of Jefferson and Monticello," declared Judge Wright, "he is good enough for me. Being a good Confederate soldler. and is the properties of the late Bishop Atkinson, a sistering a good confederate soldler. The care of the late Bishop Atkinson, of North thing the matter with the cron this matter with the conformation of the late Bishop Atkinson, of North that grand institution of Jefferson and Monticello," declared Judge Wright, "he is good enough for me. Dr. Gibson had been nominated Bishop-Coadjutor of the diocese, and hat the nomination was awaiting the Wright, "he is good enough for me. marching side by side with me at the reunion here last summer, he is good enough for me. In fact, Dr. Gibson is the apple of my eye," asserted Judge Wright, producing laughter throughout the auditorium of the church. "He possesses the culture and refinement of a Virginian, and is a Virginian among Virginians, He measures up to the standard in every way. He looks like a bishop; he is a bishop, and I want to vote for bin."

Judge Wallace followed Judge Wright in a short, but telling speech, in favor of the confirmation of Dr. Gibson's selection. He said Judge Wright knew enough about law to know that the making of a charge was not ground to warrant a mere susplcion of guilt. Judge Wallace reiterated his former statement in connection with Dr. Gibson's denial. He did not think it was fair for a man to bring in vile stander against another and drag him before the world, when he had no opportunity of himself to defend himself. "We have got a good man," declared Judge Wallace, and there is no truth in these trumped-up, hearsay charges."

Mr. Meade said he was not happy. Dr. Gibson was sound enough in doctrine, and was eminently fitted for the high office in every other way, but he thought it was a hard thing to say to the clergy of the Diocese of Virginia, "There's not one of you fit to hold the office of Eishop Coajutor, and we must go outside the dioese for a man." Mr. J. H. C. Beverly, of Essex, thought the exact nature of the charges should be made known to the laity, when it was suggested that the clergy and Bishop Peterkin had become sponsor for Dr. Gibson, and that the lay delegates should

My Dear Dr. Mason,-I have received your letter of 13th instant, and would have replied sooner, but I have been off on a tour, and am just home.

My relations with Mr. Gibson were very close for the mine years he had charge of this church. That gave me an admirable opportunity to know him, while I shall have to acknowledge that it was the control of the contro so cemented our friendship that pernaps cannot be considered a perfectly im-

When my dear father seconded his nomination for Assistant Bishop of Virginia in 1883, he said that he had been with him for ten years and that he thought he was the wisest man for his years that he knew. He said, also, that he was not an eccentric, but a concen-tric, man, and that fairly described him tric, man, and that fairly described him. I should not like to say that Mr. G. was a very remarkable man along one particular line, but he unites as many, if not more, excellencies in a high degree as any man I know.

I should say that he was robust, mentally, morally, and physically. He is very genial and yet without levity. He has a hearty sympathy with men gene-very genial and yet without levity. He has a hearty sympathy with men generally, as I found, when I got him to go (as I often did) on short missionary tours for me, the people were invariably immensely pleased with him and wanted to see him again. As for his standing among his brethren being considered, you know that he was always sent with practical unanimity to the general convention, and he stepped into just the same position in Southern Ohio.

Mr. G. was very popular with all the ladies of his congregation, and equally so with their astute businessmen—I know of no exception. He is a fair-minded man, clear headed. I have often thought he could give the best acoften thought he could give the best account of a book he had read of any one I knew. He is free from self-seeking and cant and nonsense of all kinds, as any men you will find in a day's travel—has a very cheerful, bright disposition. I do not know that he has any special regutation as a preacher, but we count him a good preacher. I have him very good.

If you take up any one line you may find some man to surpass him, but I think it would be hard to find any one better rounded and filled out. You could tell where to find Gibson on almost any question before he expressed himself. He has no taste for novelties or nonsensehas no taste for novelties or nonsenseis clear and sensible and practical—gets along with everybody, while he is manly and straightforward. I commended him very highly to Southern Ohlo and to Georgia (of course, in response to inquiries from responsible parties), and have never regretted one word of the high commendation I wrote, but would be ready to reaffirm it all. At your request, I write to you freely and have no

The council then took a recess until 8:30 P. M., when those who had not signed the credentials of the Bishop-elect did so, and there was a short devotional service.

people to encourage in a substantial way the little mission paper of the dlocese entitled "Our Missionary Work," He said the paper was in debt when it started, was still in debt, and from present prospects, would always be in debt. her of persons came forward and con-tributed so liberally to the success of the publication that it will probably not owe a dollar this morning.

The council adjourned sine die at 9:30 o'clock, closing by the singing of the hymn "Blest He the Tle That Binds" and prayer. The Bishop pronounced the Signor Campobello to Sing.

Signor E. Campobello will sing for the offertory at the Second Baptist church next Sunday morning the baritone solo. "A New Heaven and a New Earth," from Gaul's "Holy City."

Signor Campobello was the original singer of this part at the first presentation of this oratorio at the music festival held in Birmingham, England, in 1883, under the direction of the composer, and consequently interprets the same in accordance with the composer's idea. The choir will sing the "Choral Sanctus" in connection with he solo.

RALEIGH'S BUDGET.

NEWS NOTES CAUGHT AT NORTH CAROLINA'S CAPITAL.

Requisition for Military Supplies-State Aid to Education-The Fight Will Go On-The Chicken Trade-

RALEIGH, N. C., June 30 .- (Special.)-A letter from State-Geologist Joseph A. Holmes says he is now in California. He will make a short stop in Arizona on his way to Denver.

The United States Marshal's office of our remnant day to the Western District was to-day removed from Statesville to Greensboro'.

The State is making requisition on the War Department for supplies for the 1838 issue. Among these will be dark-blue flannel shirts for the entire State Guard. Practically all the supplies are for service wear. Of full-dress there is a supply. The inspections are to be made in the service dress and in heavy marching

No attention is paid to the habits of trees; all are iopped alike.

Rev. John E. White, of the Baptist State Sunday-School Board, says that at the association this year the old question of opposition to higher education by the state will come up again. He says this-will be done-first, because the Baptists think it the wise course; and secondly, because it is as they consider it in selfdefence, to protect their own schools. He says there are now seventy-eight Baptist schools, which are "feeders" to Wake Forest College. Dr. M. M. Orr, who was Charlotte's old-of Its Lease. GREENSBORO', N. C., June 30 .- (Special.)-The decree in the case of the Southern railway vs. the North Carolina railway, et als., was handed down to-day by Judge Simonton, and filed here goes over the evidence, and is contained in eighteen typewritten pages.

The three questions were: First, as to whether the North Carolina could lease; second, was the lease executed in con-firmity with the requirements of the charter; third, was the lease executed bona fide without fraud and malpractice?

Judge Simonton answers: First, the North Carolina railway had the right to lease; second, the lease was executed in a conformity with the requirements of the charter; third, as to whether there was fraud, the question is referred to Hon. Kerr Craige as special master, to take testimony and report, sixty days to file testimony. The com-plainant and the old Board of Directors Governor Russell are given twenty days to reply. The special master shall then report to court as soon as possible. In the mean time, the restraining order re been fighting, and were an earlier fray.

Their names were Annie Jackson, Mattie Green, and Mülle Walker. Annie and Mattie were fighting along in a social sort of a way. Annie had received quite a bad cut across the shoulder, when Millie joined in and cut them both. All three women were patched up, and sewed up where patches were not required. The fight occurred at Grace and Eighteenth streets.

HORRIBLY BURNED.

The alarm of fire this evening, about $\frac{1}{2}$ o'clock, was caused by the explosion of a can of kerosene oil in the hands of Gracie Tucker, the 10-year-old daughter of Mrs. Francis Tucker. The little girl was in the act of making a fire in the cooking-stove, when the explosion eccurred. She was horribly, if not fatally, burned about the head, face, arms, and body. The house also caught affre, but was put out by the neighbors before much damage was done. damage was done.

Castle-litt Thoroughbred Sale.

Castle-Hill Thoroughbred Sals.

COBHAM, VA., June 30.—(Special)—At the sale of thoroughbreds at Castle Hill Thereday judges of good horsefiesh were present from adjoining counties and the large trade centres. The prices ranged low, although the stock, especially ine 2-year-olds, were in prime condition. The price of fine-bred colts is slow all over the country, in harmony with the general depression prevailing everywhere. To the strangers the old Colonial mansion, with vine-clad walls; the magnofia-trees, and driveways proved of wondrous interest, and to a few friends Colonel Rives estended a cordial greeting, and dispensed in true southern style only that which is fit for kings.
